Section-A

1 Threshold frequency is defined as that minimum frequency that an electromagnetic radiation should have, so that it is able to eject electrons from the surface of the metal ^(with zero kinetic energy) on which it is incident.

Mathematically, threshold frequency ν_0

$$\nu_0 = \frac{\phi_0}{h}$$

where ϕ_0 is the work function of the corresponding metal.

Or in other words, it is the minimum frequency of incident radiation for which photoelectric effect is observed.
